What is the difference in execution between the built in functions eval and get?

Get looks up a value, eval actually parses the argument as if it was scam code. That is my understanding.