Does the curry function only need to be able to accept one argument to function "f" at a time (i.e. (curry f a)) or does it need to be able to accept any number of arguments (i.e. (curry f a b), (curry f a b c))?

No, just one. A true ability to curry would accept a variable number of arguments, though.

Great, thank you!