Will variables be initialized to zero during test input, or are we able to assume that an initialized variable will have a value (int, real, string)?

Wouldn't zero be a legal value of at least type int, if not also type real?

zero, positive, and negative numbers are all possible.