Could we add built in function to our language that would aid in the creation of an avl tree, For example a built variable type "node" with its own left and right node pointers. These would also be used for implementing linked lists

That would be fine, although you can use a three element array as a node (value, left, right).