If you want me to rerun the test script with your original submission, let me know. I think I've fixed the silent test failures. Send me an email from your crimson email account or put your crimson email address in the body of the message.

You reran my code and I noticed the test that I failed didn't show the complete thing. For example on #20 the last line was Quote: (unioning list a and list b, 3 times) and for #22 it was Quote: repeated 19980 times: removeDLL(a,0);

Does that mean that is where it broke exactly or is it just happen stance?

That means it broke somewhere in that section. I suspect for test #20, something went wrong on the second union, when the b list was empty.
