For the generic tree, when the tree is empty, when showing the tree would you display a space character after the first line number? So basically, "0:" or "0:"? I currently have it implemented where the line number and colon are printed, and then for each node a space is printed and then the display function is called.

Seems reasonable. I'll add that to the spec.